Preface

This booklet is designed to provide a quick reference guide for Seniors seeking to upgrade or modify their living arrangements. The following definitions are to clarify the types of housing available to ensure the best choice for you.

Senior Apartments are designed for those who are completely independent and who choose to live in a community with other seniors.

Assisted Living Facilities cater to residents who range from the fairly independent to wheelchair-bound or frail/confused individuals. Services provided are as follows: laundry services, medications assistance, bathing, dressing, and assistance with activities provided by the facility.

Residential Care Facilities, formerly Board and Care Homes, are residential type homes located in various communities licensed by the State of California for relatively small numbers of residents. In a family setting, these homes cater to those who might be frail or in need of limited assistance. Basic services such as laundry, and meals may be provided.

Nursing / Convalescent Homes and Skilled Nursing Facilities are for individuals that need 24-hour supervision. These facilities offer medical treatment under the supervision of State licensed nurses.

Mobile Home Parks are mixed age mobile home housing.

The descriptive information included in this booklet was provided by the facilities listed. Inclusion does not constitute an endorsement by the City of Rancho Cucamonga or its employees.

Agency Information

Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD)

HUD Senior Information Website

715 E. Brier Drive
San Bernardino, CA 92408
1-909-890-0644

Maintained by the US Government, the HUD Office contains general information about senior housing throughout the United States. The website contains information including but not limited to:

- Reverse mortgage for seniors
- Federal housing programs for seniors
- Housing Counseling for seniors
- Rural housing loans
- Find affordable rents
- Public Housing information
- Housing Choice Vouchers (Section 8)
- Rural Rental Help
- Housing Discrimination
- Reserve mortgage scams

If you need public housing assistance or would like specific information about public housing programs such as housing choice vouchers, please contact your local Public Housing Agency.

Housing Authority of San Bernardino County

Housing Authority of SB County Website \(hacsb.com\)

Apply for Housing Assistance

672 South Waterman Avenue

San Bernardino, CA 92408

1-909-890-9533

Important Note: The Housing Authority has various affordable housing programs that provide housing assistance to eligible, low-income households. The Housing Authority is only funded by the federal government for a certain number of housing vouchers and units. Even if your household qualifies for rental assistance, you will be placed on a waiting list until a housing voucher or unit is available, which often take years before you receive assistance.

Housing Authority of San Bernardino County Tenant-Based Voucher Program (Formally known as Section 8)

Tenant Based Voucher Website

424 North Lemon

Ontario, CA 91764

1-909-890-5360

The Tenant-Based Voucher Rental Assistance Program, formally known as Section 8 and the Housing Choice Voucher Program, provides eligible low-income households with rental assistance to lease a home or apartment of their choice from a landlord in the regular rental market.

Households assisted in this program are placed into one of the following sub-programs to better serve the various populations on our programs:

Streamlined Lease Assistance Program – provides assistance for elderly and disabled household.

Term-Limited Lease Assistance Program – provides new non-senior/non-disabled households rental assistance for five years.

The waiting list for this program is often closed and only opens every several years because the federal government only provides funding to serve a certain number of households. New households are assisted as current households move off the program. Serving families through attrition causes long wait times even if a family may be eligible.

Eligibility Requirements/HUD Income Levels

- The head of household must be at least 18 years of age or be a legally emancipated minor.
- The household must meet Section 214 requirements governing U.S. citizenship and eligible immigration status.
- All adults are subject to a criminal background check when your application is processed for eligibility.
- Site based waiting lists have additional eligibility requirements which include meeting the guidelines of acceptable credit.
- For most households, their total gross yearly income must not exceed the federal income limits below at time of final eligibility.
- Tax Credit properties will follow applicable Tax Credit income guidelines.

| 1 Person | 2 People | 3 People | 4 People | 5 People | 6 People | 7 People | 8 People |

Assisted living communities provide daily physical fitness, maintenance-free living such as housekeeping, trash and laundry. Trained staff is available 24 hours a day. Three meals a day as well as snacks available throughout the day. Social and education programs for families are provided.

TIP: Many older adults prefer to stay at home as they age. It has the advantage of being a familiar place and you know your neighbors and the community. There is a wide range of home care services that can help you maintain your independence within the comfort of your own home, from in-home help to day care.

Staying at home may be a good option if:

- You have a close network of nearby family, friends, and neighbors.
- Transportation is easily accessible, including alternate transportation to driving.
- Your neighborhood is safe.
- Your home can be modified to reflect your changing needs.
- Home and yard maintenance are not overwhelming.
- Your physical and medical needs do not require a high level of care.
- You have a gregarious personality and are willing and able to reach out for social support.
- You fall within the geographical confines of an integrated community, such as a “village” or NORC (Naturally Occurring Retirement Community).

Aging in place is a less effective senior housing option once your mobility is limited. Being unable to leave your home frequently and socialize with others can lead to isolation, loneliness, and depression in seniors. So, even if you select to age in place today, it's important to have a plan for the future when your needs may change and staying at home may no longer be the best option.

TIP: Understanding costs. There are a whole range of costs for senior housing, ranging from subsidized senior apartments to nursing homes which can average $70,000 per year in the U.S. When considering senior housing, the following considerations can factor into cost:

- Location: High cost of living or metropolitan areas will normally be more expensive for all levels of housing.
- Level of care: In general, the higher the level of care, the more you can expect to pay. Nursing homes are the most expensive, but assisted living facilities can also easily run $3,000 to $4,000 a month or more.
- Insurance coverage: In the U.S., Medicare, health insurance coverage for seniors, generally does not cover senior housing options other than nursing homes. Medicare also only covers limited stays in nursing homes when skilled nursing care is required. Medicaid, health insurance for limited incomes, may cover some assisted living costs and does provide nursing home coverage. However, facilities are not required to take Medicaid.
- Long-term care insurance: You can purchase insurance to offset some of the costs of long-term care. Coverage and provisions can vary, but frequently some in-home help and assisted living facility costs are covered, as well as nursing homes.
- Home modification cost and in-home help: A home modification may initially seem expensive, but it can result in savings over time if it allows you to stay at home longer. You can also estimate how much in-home help may cost.

TIP: Benefits Checkup is free service of the National Council on Aging (NCOA), a nonprofit service and advocacy organization in Washington, DC.

Many adults over 55 need help paying for prescription drugs, health care, utilities, and other basic needs. There are over 2,000 federal, state and private benefits programs available to help. But many people don't know these programs exist or how they can apply.

Benefits Checkup asks a series of questions to help identify benefits that could save you money and cover the costs of everyday expenses. After answering the questions, you will get a report created just for you that describes the programs you may get help from. You can apply for many of the programs online or you can print an application form.

Here are the types of expenses you may get help with:

- Medications Food Utilities Legal Health Care Housing
- In-home services Taxes Transportation
- Employment Training

TIP: Some chronic conditions like Parkinson's, Alzheimer's, emphysema, diabetes, obesity, heart disease, Lou Gehrig's disease, Multiple Sclerosis, and others might add to the likelihood that you may need assistance with daily activities during your lifetime. Living and aging with a disability may also contribute to your need for assistance.

Not everyone will need long-term care. Each person is different, and each person manages his/her life decisions, including health and wellness, in a unique way. You can make wise decisions by learning more about your health. You can search for medical literature about chronic conditions on the Internet. You can also read about how others manage disabilities on the Internet. New treatments and new assistive devices are developed each year to help people stay well and independent. Staying healthy and connected to your family and community can help you give and receive care in a way that is meaningful throughout your lifetime.

Regardless, it is smart to create a personal long-term care plan to make things much easier should the time come when you need long-term care services and supports.

TIP:

2-1-1 call centers are nonprofit organizations specializing in providing free public information.

Most 2-1-1 lines provide:

- A 24/7 Call Center
- A comprehensive database of free and low-cost health and human services available A free and confidential phone call
- Staffed by professional, trained, caring people who give information & referrals to appropriate resources

The 2-1-1 concept is the result of the evolution of public information thinking and the innovative marriage of technical and people power. The first experimental 2-1-1 number began operating in Atlanta, Georgia in 1997. In the year 2000, the FCC (Federal Communications Commission) finalized the N11's. 2-1-1 was set aside for health and human services information and referrals.

Nationwide, more than 85% or the US population has 2-1-1 available. That number is over 93% in California. San Bernardino County has 100% coverage with the singular exception of Metro Wireless, which has chosen not to pass 2-1-1 calls anywhere.

TIP: Advance Directives. An advance directive (AD) allows a patient to communicate health care preferences in the event that he or she is no longer able to make these decisions. Many see advance care planning (ACP) as a way to help ensure that wishes about end-of-life care are honored. The process includes discussing values and goals of care among the patient, family, and physician, and determining or executing treatment directives. Ideally, ADs are part of the ACP process. Twenty years ago, Congress passed the Patient Self-Determination Act (PSDA) requiring most health care facilities to inform adult patients about their rights to execute an AD. Research indicates that the preference for having an AD can be influenced by individual attitudes, cultural beliefs, health conditions, and trust in health care professionals.
